

inally broken for construction of this bold and imaginative project. And it took another 6 years before tidal wave of promotional activity hit all major cities of US and overseas for similar parking projects based upon this one single idea: to use sub surface rights beneath a public park for parking use and replacement of the park after construction. The point here is that between the time an idea is conceived in a man's mind and the time it becomes a reality there is always a time gap. Sometimes it is short - - sometimes it is a long one.
